

DJSI STOXX: MAN stays on track

Munich,
Nov.26, 2004

It has been confirmed that MAN shares will remain listed in the Dow Jones STOXX Sustainability Index (DJSI STOXX) during 2005. The DJSI STOXX is Europe's leading share index for sustainable corporate governance.

Assessment is based not only on economic and ecological ratios, but also on environmental management, as well as sponsoring and support for social and cultural activities. Only so-called sustainability leaders are admitted to the DJSI STOXX, i.e. companies holding leading positions at a European level in the defined areas. This assessment is prepared annually by the independent Zürich-based company Sustainable Asset Management (SAM).

MAN shares have been included in the DJSI STOXX since 2003. MAN has published environmental reports since 1996, the first Sustainability Report being presented in 2003, while the second is to follow in the spring of 2005. These contain information on the MAN Group's achievements in terms of sustainability, which covers the areas of economy, ecology and social issues.
